Hey Snow Lovers, the Alaska Avalanche Information Center here with your weekly Snow Report thanks to support from Moving 105.7!

Don't put away your hats and gloves just yet, forecasters are calling for clear, cold and windy conditions this week with little to no precipitation expected.

Snow forecasters report avalanche danger moderate to considerable. Stay alert for wind slabs and variable conditions throughout the range. Be sure to check current avalanche information at Alaska Snow dot org before you venture into the backcountry.

Last week's snow blanketed area trails and slopes with three to 12 inches of fresh powder making this a great time to get out and enjoy Alaska. Just bundle up in layers for comfort.

The annual Tour of Anchorage Nordic ski race is set for Sunday, March 5th with a host of freestyle and classic races, all finishing at Kincaid Park. Come for the race. Stay for the party.

Snowmobilers will find trails open around Anchorage from Eklutna Lake to Hillside. Be aware of parking restrictions and trail use requirements.

Outside Anchorage, trails from Turnagain Pass (south) to Denali State Park and Lake Louise North are open for riding, skiing and touring.

Be respectful. And where ever you adventure, go prepared so you can Live to Ride Another Day!

Get information on all things snow at AlaskaSnow dot org.

That's it for this week. Enjoy Alaska and Be Safe out there!
